Mike Lee

Elite Performance Coach
Author | Speaker
MindShift Labs | Los Angeles, CA

“Bridging his background in basketball leadership and performance — training some of basketball’s 1% — with mindfulness and emotional intelligence, Mike helps high-performing leaders master the psychology needed to lead and perform in a 2020 world full of challenges and adversity.

Through Mike’s experience building an international basketball brand from his college apartment, he understands the challenges leaders face in today’s world.

In the basketball world, it’s crucial that players have the fundamental skills to execute the team’s strategy. In the world of education, it’s no different. People need the foundational skills like self-awareness, presence, and resilience to constantly adapt, perform and create in this time of unprecedented change.

Drawing on the latest research from neuroscience, basketball and personal experience, Mike has shared stories and practical exercises — across the United States, Indonesia and Spain — to help people find their own inner power and poise to thrive in leadership and life.”
